Honeywell's Command Central Tracking System

Quick, reliable and accurate program insights.

Instead of searching for data from the various aspects of your energy-efficiency programs, let Honeywell's Command Central Tracking System save you time by putting all the information at your fingertips. It's a centralized tracking system that houses all the data, making reviews and reports simple, easy and fast.

Improved Understanding

Through easy access to more near-real-time datasets and a wide range of reporting options, you'll have a clear picture of how your energy-efficiency programs are performing, what's working best, and identify areas of opportunity. Now you can have the tools to make more-informed decisions to enhance and refine your programs.

Flexible For Your Needs

Honeywell's Command Central Tracking System does more than centralize your internal program information. It lets you incorporate data from external systems, customize dashboards for at-a-glance views of the information you want, set up role based permissions so different team members have access only to specific data, and easily add programs or functions as needed. The flexibility of this tracking system allows you to access relevant data quickly and easily.

Simplified Reporting

With swift communication between the integration hub and outside systems, it's easier than ever to measure results and generate compelling reports. The configurable dashboards help you review and analyze the data, and you'll have the ability to quickly create customized reports.

A Foundation For The Future

Real-time data. Historical data. Program status. Field marketing activities. Call center activity. Honeywell's Command Central Tracking System provides all the information you want from a single source. Now more time can be spent turning insights into actions. Better information leads to better, more effective programs. Plus, the scalability of this tracking system makes it easy to integrate and review pilot programs for future growth.

Honeywell's Command Central Tracking System is scalable and flexible for easy adaption as your needs change. Plus, permissions can be set to allow specific views for the different roles on your team, keeping information both relevant and secure.
